

How to Make a Four Corner Minibook

All it Takes is a Square!

Have a square of paper? Then you can easily make this minibook. Because of how it's folded, the four corner minibook is also often called an envelope book.

Make it large or make it small depending on how much content you want to include in the book.

Directions for Making a Four Corner Minibook

(also called an envelope book)

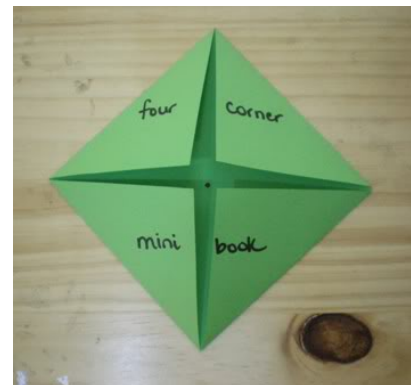

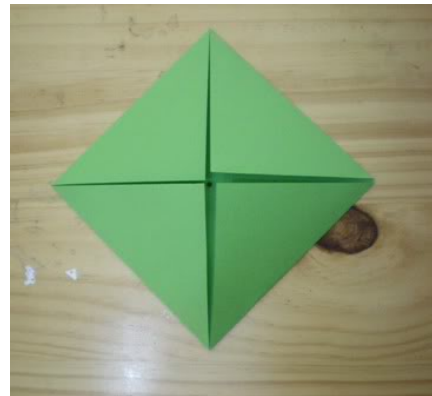

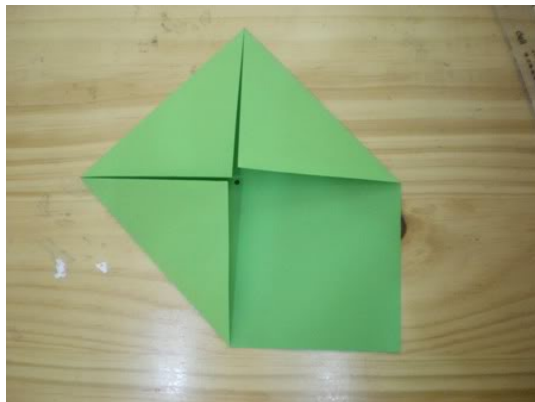

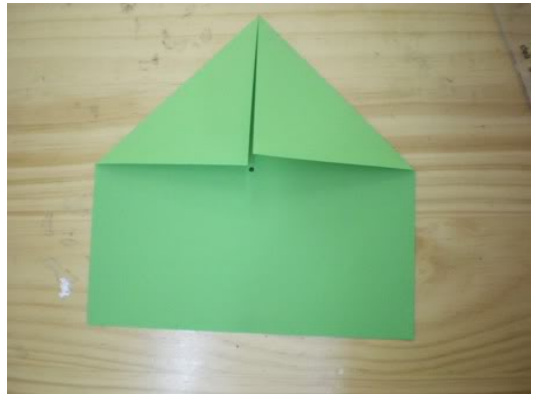

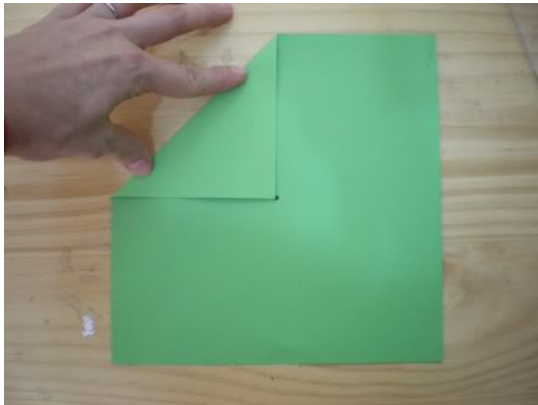

Cut a square of any size. This minibook works well with any thickness of paper -- from copy paper to cardstock. Keep in mind that the closed book will end up being half of the size of your original square.

Find the center of the square. You can also lightly draw the center lines with a pencil.

Fold each corner into the center.

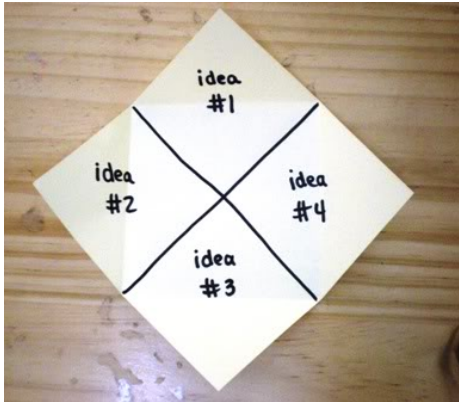

The book closed -- use the flaps to write your title or to label what's under each flap.

The book open -- add your text or images inside.

It easily divides into four diamond shapes for four bits of information.

Variations of the Envelope Book

- create the book with a square shape orientation or with a diamond shape orientation
- use various colors of paper
- use small squares for tiny envelope books
- fold the whole book in half to create a triangle shape
